

CASE STUDY

A brilliant fortnight then two months of silence became publishing every day, for a tenth of a content team's cost.

THE BUSINESS

A services business that posted in motivated bursts: five posts, two reels, then two months of nothing while the algorithm and the audience forgot them.

The situation

Daily is a brutal ask for a human team and a trivial ask for a system. Average-but-daily beats brilliant-but-occasional every time.

A junior content hire plus a freelance designer plus tools ran ₹1.2L+ a month, and output still dropped every time someone took leave.

What they did

- 1 Once a quarter, planned 90 days of themes with the system: what they sell, what buyers ask, what season it is.
- 2 Weekly, the engine drafted the week across formats and queued it in a review folder.
- 3 The founder spent 30 minutes a week approving, not writing or designing.
- 4 Something published every day, including travel weeks and deal weeks.

The result, one quarter

₹1,05,000 / month saved

A ₹1.2L content team replaced by a ~₹15,000 system that never has a busy week.

365 days

of presence, no busy-week gaps

30 min

of founder review a week, nothing else

₹15K

run cost a month vs ₹1.2L+ for a team

0 missed days, even on leave

	BEFORE	AFTER
Cadence	bursts	daily
Monthly cost	₹1.2L	₹15K
Founder time	high	30 min/wk
Gaps	frequent	none

Posted in January and never since?

Reply "CALENDAR" and I will draft your first 90-day theme map. Free.

REPLY CALENDAR →

anandiyer.co.in