

CASE STUDY

A founder's cold outreach started converting better, with the same messages, once the profile stopped being a graveyard.

THE FOUNDER

A founder sending cold outreach behind a 2019 headshot and three posts from last Diwali. The outreach took the blame; the infrastructure was empty.

The situation

Every cold message ends the same way: the prospect reads it, opens your profile, and decides in about 8 seconds whether you are real.

A parked profile means ignore. The message was fine. The proof behind it was missing.

What they did

- 1 Treated posting as conversion infrastructure, not a branding hobby.
- 2 Ran 3 posts a week, auto-drafted from voice notes and mined content, 30 minutes of review.
- 3 Outreach recipients now landed on a living profile instead of a parked one.
- 4 Same outreach volume, more replies, because the person checking now found evidence.

The result, per year

120 extra conversations a year, content cost ~2 hrs a month

Same outreach volume, roughly 10% more recipients converting, plus inbound as a side effect.
